

NASC Code of Practice for Scaffolding products

The NASC Code of Practice was originally introduced in 2007 for system scaffolds. The scope has since been expanded to incorporate EN39 tube, EN74-1 couplers, BS2482 timber board and aluminium beams. High tensile 3.2mm tube has since been added to the list of audited products.

The rationale behind the NASC CoP audit was to introduce a level of compliance that supplier members should adhere to, with the audit covering Quality Systems & Procedures, Product Testing, Raw Material & Components and Process Control. Where appropriate relevant BS, EN & ISO Standards are utilised.

Audits are carried out by a third party consultancy company QSI Ltd at member company UK sites and at manufacturing sites worldwide. Compliant products are listed on the NASC website.

The audit is specific to new product at point of entry to the UK. In some instances compliant products are also supplied by other NASC hire/sale members.

The following compliant product list is in respect of specific scaffolding products submitted for third party audit by NASC member suppliers. For further details please contact the NASC member supplier directly.
